Refined Walleye Skills = Results

As with any fishing technique, skill and knowledge determine the level of success. Refined presentations, such as those used by walleye professionals result in consistent catches under any or adverse conditions.

At our Arlington Anglers June meeting, Walleye Professional Larry Conn walked us thru his equipment, tactics, and presentations that have resulted in many successful walleye trips and tournaments. Larry even brought his fully rigged walleye boat so that members get some new ideas for rigging their own boats. Larry shared some tips that could increase your walleye catches:

Before the Zebra Mussel invasion, boats could often troll right over walleyes in the murky water and not spook them. Now that countless mussels filter the water and drastically increase its clarity, walleyes are proving less tolerant and more elusive.

Walleyes that suspend near the surface in clear water tend to scoot away from a boat passing overhead and escape the lures trailing behind it. Your depth finder may mark few fish, yet there could be scads of them swimming out of your path. One of the most effective methods for getting a lure out to boat-shy walleyes consists of trolling with small planer boards that connect directly to your lines.

Know the trolling diving depths of your crank baits to zero in on the walleyes that are suspended or hugging the bottom. Boat speed and line size will affect depths.

Use maps and your GPS. If you get a fish trolling, mark the spot and go back as soon as possible. It may result in one additional fish or finding a whole school.

Match your trolling speed to the aggressiveness of the fish and the type of lures you are running. Worm harnesses, crank baits, and spoons all have an optimum speed for realistic action.

On an overcast and rainy 6/6, we had 9 fishermen and 4 boats for the Lake Delavan Outing. Member Joe Rygiel scored a pair of nice 4 lb. largemouth bass casting large minnows. The Jerry Lopez boat did well on northern pike throwing their favorite X-Raps. The Navigation Award was presented to Tom Curtin for finding an establishment on the water with cheap beverages and food.

Dates to remember:
June 27 - Outing at Diversey Harbor for perch;
July 18 - Outing at Lake Shabbona;
July 21 - Meeting with Speaker;
